

Dr. Jack Norris was a chairman and trustee of A.A. for 27 years.

Dr. Jack Norris' talk at Memorial Services for Bill Wilson on Feb.14th, 1971

Our beloved Bill is dead. Even as I stand before you and say the words, I cannot really believe that it is true. In my heart I choose to believe that Bill is here with us at this very moment. And I somehow can almost hear him saying in that half-amused, half-embarrassed way of his, "Oh come on now Jack, do you really think all this fuss is necessary?"

Two weeks ago, at a meeting of your Board of Trustees, shortly after Bill's passing, there was a rather lively discussion about a matter involving the whole fellowship. When it had reached a certain level of intensity, I found myself waiting to hear Bill speak up, as he so often did and say those few words that would put everything in perspective. But he didn't speak. And it was then that I realized way down deep that we would never hear his voice again . . . that we could no longer count on the constant presence of his wisdom and strength. We could never again say, as we had so many times before, "Bill, what do you think?" And I at least, have not yet come to accept this completely.

Bill was no saint. He was an alcoholic and a man of stubborn will and purpose. How else could he have lived through the years of frustration, failure, and discouragement while the steps, the traditions, and the conferences were being hammered out on the anvil of hard experience with the first few groups? That he had the self-honesty, the clarity of vision to see the vital necessity for the Third Step, and turning one's life and will over to a Higher Power is just one part of our great good fortune that Bill lived. I have seen Bill's pride and I have seen his humility. And I have been present when people from far countries have met him for the first time and started to cry. And all Bill — that shy Vermonter — could do was stand there and look like he wanted to run from the room. No, Bill was no saint, although many of us wanted to make him into one. Knowing this, he was insistent that legends about him be kept to a minimum — that accurate records be kept so that future generations would know him as a man. He was a very human person — to me an exceptionally human person.

Bill's constant concern during almost all of the years that I knew him was that Alcoholics Anonymous should always be available for the suffering alcoholic--that the mistakes that led to the fading of previous movements to help alcoholics should be avoided. To me one measure of his greatness is the clarity of vision of the future in his determination to let go of us long before we were willing to let go of him.

Bill was a good sponsor,- the wise old timer determined to relinquish the role of founder because he knew that A.A. must, as he would say, come of age and take complete responsibility for itself. He had an abiding faith that our Fellowship not only could, but should run without him. Repeatedly, during the last few years, he has said in General Service Conference sessions "We have nothing to fear." Bill believed that the wisdom of A.A. came out of church basements and not from the pulpit; that it was directed from the groups to the Trustees rather than the other way around. He sometimes felt, when the Conference disagreed with him as it sometimes did, that its conscience needed to be better informed, but it was this way that we really shared experience and developed strength and confidence that the answers would work out.

And I know that this is possible. Bill has trained us for it beginning in St. Louis in 1955. For this was Bill's vision--to create a channel of communication within the Fellowship of Alcoholics Anonymous that would make it possible for everyone to be here: from the individual through the group, to the delegates and to the Trustees, so that A.A. will always be here to extend a hand to the drunk who is at this very moment crying in the darkness of his night as he reaches out for help.

In closing, I want to say that it has been an honor for me to have had this opportunity to participate in giving thanks to God that Bill lived and was given the wisdom and strength and courage to make the world a better place for all of us. There are many more things I could say, but what can one say finally of a man's goodness and greatness? I cannot do it or say it for any of you--only for myself. He was the greatest and wisest man I ever knew. Above everything, he was a man. And I believe he left his goodness and greatness and wisdom and strength with us, for any of us to use in what measure we can. May God grant us the wisdom and strength to keep Alcoholics Anonymous alive, attractive, unencumbered by the egocentricities that can so easily spoil it.

Thanks for the contribution!

Moved by the spirit of anonymity, we try to give up our natural desires for personal distinction as A.A. members, both among fellow alcoholics and before the general public. As we lay aside these very human aspirations, we believe that each of us takes part in the weaving of a protective mantle which covers our whole Society and under which we may grow and work in unity.

We have no desire to convince anyone that there is only one way by which faith can be acquired. All of us, whatever our race, creed, or color, are children of a living Creator, with whom we may form a relationship upon simple and understanding terms as soon as we are willing and honest enough to try.

A sober father was raising his young son with the help of AA slogans and sayings.
If the boy was angry or agitated, his dad would say, "Easy Does It."
If the boy was sad or unhappy, his father would counsel, "Let Go and Let God."
This plan backfired one day when the boy asked to go to a toy store.
"Absolutely not!" said the father.
"Aw, c'mon Dad," said the boy. "Bring the body and the mind will follow."

Getting to Close to a Drunk

Would you believe it? Some drunk had the nerve to come to our A.A. meeting—yes, a real brown-baggin’ -whiskey-smelling drunk. I was surprised, shocked, and a little uneasy when he slipped into the chair next to me and placed his bag full of empties on the floor. Why this bothered me, I don’t know. We’re in the inner city and people show up drunk sometimes. What was I afraid of? Was this guy too drunk? ‘Too drunk.’ That was my denial telling me I was better than he was.

I was chairing that night and had picked the topic for discussion. “There but for the Grace of God.” But when the time came to announce it, I hesitated and blurted out “acceptance.”

My drunken friend listened quietly to the various stories and dialogues. Occasionally he would mumble something and people would react almost defiantly and look at him scoldingly to be quiet.

Being the chairperson, I was uncomfortable with what was happening. Should I tell the drunk to be quiet or have him removed? Why did this happen on my night, but didn’t he have a right to be here? Why wouldn’t he just be quiet?

Suddenly he stood up, waited for a break in the discussion, and asked if he could speak. His story unfolded, not much different from what I expected. He had just lost a good job, lost his family, been in and out of hospitals, and so forth. After this litany of despair, he looked out at the group as if to put himself up for an example and said. “Most of you young people don’t think this will ever happen to you. You think it’s funny that an old drunk like me can’t get sober. Well, just remember me when you hear, “There but for the Grace of God.”

He turned to me, sat down and remained solemn for the rest of the meeting. When I held his hand during the Lord’s Prayer, it was trembling—-a sensation I remember all too well.

I think back on that and what a powerful message that drunk brought. Never have I been so close—sober— to another drunk. Never have I been so humbled.
