Ask Bill W....

37Q - What is AA's relationship with the community?

37A - Now that our methods and results are better known we are receiving splendid cooperation everywhere from clergymen, doctors, employers, editors - in fact, from whole communities. While there is still a well-understood reluctance on the part of city and private hospitals to admit alcoholic patients, we are pleased to report a great improvement in this direction. But we are still very far, in most places, from having anything like adequate hospital accommodations.

Over and above this traditional activity, we may give some counsel to those who work upon various aspects of the total problem. It may be possible that our experience fits us for a special task. Writing of Alcoholics Anonymous, Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick once said: "Gothic Cathedral windows are not the sole thing which can be seen from within. Alcoholism is another. All outside views are clouded and unsure." Thus, with our inside view - one best seen by those drinkers who have suffered from alcoholism - we would help those working on alcohol problems who have not had our first hand experience.

While we members of Alcoholics Anonymous are not scientists, our special insight may help science; while we are of all religions and sometimes none, we can assist clergymen; although not educators, we shall, perhaps, aid in clearing away unsure views; not penologists, we do help in prison work; not a business or organization, we nevertheless advise employers; not sociologists, we constantly serve families, friends and communities; not prosecutors or judges, we try to promote understanding and justice; emphatically not doctors, we do minister to the sick. Taking no side on controversial questions, we may sometimes mediate fruitless antagonism, which have so often blocked effective cooperation among those who would solve the riddle of the alcoholic.

These are the activities and aspirations of thousands of the members of Alcoholics Anonymous. While our organization as a whole has but one aim - to help the alcoholic who wishes to recover - there are a few of us, indeed, who as individuals do not wish to meet some of the broader responsibilities for which we may be especially fitted. (Quart. J. Stud. Alc., Vol.6, Sept., 1945).

What Pink Cloud?

As a newcomer in A.A., I heard people talk about being on a “pink cloud.” Pink cloud? What was that? All my clouds were dark and gloomy.

After I crashed in August 2000 and found myself at Vista, I knew I could no longer use wine, Southern Comfort, or Polish vodka to deal with life. No more benzodiazepines either. Another withdrawal would kill me. I had to stay clean and sober, no matter how much I hated it.

Early in the program, I slipped into a depression. I told my sponsor I couldn't get out of bed. She said go to meetings whenever you can and don't drink. So I'd head for a meeting at the Triangle Club, then run back home and hide until I got the courage to go to another meeting. Sometimes I made three meetings in a day, sometimes only one.

My doctor, who knew about my alcoholism, prescribed an antidepressant to help me through early sobriety. After awhile I was able to share in meetings and even phone other alcoholics occasionally. I started working the Steps with my sponsor. Basically, I learned to follow directions.

The dark clouds went away as the program taught me to live in the moment, not the past or the future. By staying in the present, I discovered highs that don't come from alcohol or drugs. I sometimes find myself on a high listening to acoustic guitar music, kayaking or gazing at the night sky. Just sitting quietly on my back porch with my dog and cats can make me high. My “pink cloud” experiences come without warning, filling me with joy and gratitude.

To the newcomer who's depressed or misses the relief of booze and drugs, my advice is — hang in there. Trust in the program. If you go to meetings, work the Steps, and follow directions, you'll be eligible for better highs than you ever got from drinking and using.

A Letter to Mr. Alcohol

Hey, Mr. Alcohol,

I want to let you know how much I despise you because you took possession of my life.

I started using you socially, I would stop for a few beers with the girls on payday every week. I started driving under your influence. It is a wonder I didn't kill someone or myself. I was lucky! I started taking you everywhere I went so I wouldn't miss you so I could find an excuse to use you. I didn't think you had that much of an effect on me. I thought I kept you hidden very well. I felt I could maintain my life. I was in denial!!!

How ignorant I was! I've had a lot of traumas in my life and you were there for me to pop the top. Then you came for breakfast, lunch, dinner and my in-between meal snacks. I treated you like my best friend. Then, I came to the understanding that everyone was against me because of you. THAT'S WHEN I LOST ME!!!

Mr. Alcohol, you had complete control over my life! Now they tell me that I have a disease called alcoholism and there is no cure. Because of my addiction, I lost my family, home, job sanity, and most of all, I lost my self-respect. When I went places and you weren't available, I felt that I didn't fit in without you, Mr. Alcohol, so I would isolate or make up some excuse to leave so I could spend my time with you.

I thought something was wrong with people who didn't use you, Mr. Alcohol. You had control over me. I was powerless and no one understood.

My daughter had enough of the influence and deception and my destructiveness that came with you so she left to go live with her father. My son was ashamed to be around me. Mr. Alcohol, you still came between my family and me. When they saw me under your influence, they got to the point they didn't want to be around me.

I also put myself in dangerous situations. Because of you, I've been raped, attacked, beat up with a ball bat and found the one I loved dead from an overdose. Failure after failure, I owe to you. My principles began to fade. Hear me now, I don't want you in my life anymore.

People don't understand that alcoholism is a disease that is so devastating and needs lifelong treatment. I wish people could see that we suffer an agonizing disease. Maybe this could change their attitudes and help someone get help. For people who live with this disease, there is help out there if you want it bad enough.
