Dark Witches

Dark witches may know how to work with Don't ever find the path of someone who could hex you. They don't have long noses and warts on there face anymore . They probably look just like one of us. Even if you don't believe in magic, it could still affect you. Energy is real, and they are masters of controlling energy. They also love potions with items they have kept of yours to make the curse work so much sweeter. So be careful who you date

Or how you treat others. Karma may come in the shape of a warlock or a witch and you may never know why you either get something wonderful coming to you in three's or something horrid coming to you in the same three's.

But good news there is a way to protect yourself by going to meetings and saying your prayers elemental(s) of the dark but there are so many light beings ready to keep you safe and warm. All you need to do is look within and find that safety. Where all the power of your guardian angel resides.

PAMPHLET OF THE MONTH

Inside A.A.

Understanding the Fellowship and its Services

A DECLARATION OF UNITY

This we owe to A.A.'s future:

To place our common welfare first; to keep our fellowship united.

For on A.A. unity depend our lives and the lives of those to come!

I AM RESPONSIBLE...

When anyone, anywhere reaches out of help, I want the hand of A.A. always to be there.

And for that: I am responsible.

JOKE OF THE MONTH

"That febreze smells like fireball."
Yeah I think us non-alcoholics call that cinnamon, Becky.

PET OF THE MONTH

Furry Friends help many of us stay away from the bottle or other drugs. If you desire, share you best friend or former best friend and we'll publish their photo. If you want to write a description of how they have helped your recovery. That'd be wonderful.

Happy Halloween!!

CELEBRATION BECAME RELAPSE

Cruising-Bingeing and impinging upon the principles of sobriety Delirium tremens followed as the spirits fo the bottle whispered -hissed-yelled and hollered calling my name-calling me names Encouraging my surging thirst re-urging the social curse
A double libation made life worse.

Belligerent rebuking demons surfaced from within assuring that they were friends
And all would be alright,
That this was celebrations's last night,
only one more double for the night,

Would take the edge off fright;
The demons saying while preying
"This will surely cure your boredom
And offer adventure and excitement for ony you can accept and participate In such - pleasant enticement After all you've created a totally un-necessary caustic toxic creation
As libations aren't necesssary for celebration; celebrate sobriety!"---Sam K.

My only addiction in life!

My drinking pattern was within normal parameters until my wife was diagnosed with Multiple Sclerosis. Her health suffered tremendously, and it was sad to see a very active girl having to limit her activities and her ability to help others.

With the children married and gone, I was the sole caregiver, but I was not prepared to face the stress and the responsibilities that were dropped on my shoulders, as an active 50 years old with a demanding job.

A friend suggested we go out so I could “unwind”. Of course, his idea of relaxing involved heavy drinking, and I happily joined him, and welcomed the result. The technique worked and I felt relaxed for the first time in months. I have found an escape for my anxiety and the thoughts in my mind were under control, or so I thought.

That became the standard for my life. Eight hours at the office, 5 hours at home preparing meals, and helping my wife prepare to bed, and then a 3-4 hour of heavy drinking, before going to bed, barely able to find my way around the house. After years of that, with my wife oblivious to my drinking (she was under the impression that I have been sober all my life, and I went to extreme measures to keep the lie believable.

After 6 years of health issues with MS she was diagnosed with breast cancer. My drink needed a booster to keep me going on without going crazy. I started drinking throughout the day (afternoon drinking at work became a daily routine. After my wife passed away, 4 years after the original diagnosis of cancer, being alone opened the door to uncontrollable drinking. The natural result was 3 DUI's in 7 years, a few times in jail, parole, tickets for driving without a valid license, etc.

Cunning as I was, until my 3rd DUI my children didn't know about my drinking at all. With the heavy penalties for the 3rd infraction, I was forced to confess to them my drinking habits, as I would be in jail for 63 days this time – but I was released after 40 days. In jail I had the chance to review the last years of my drinking life, and its consequences. I felt like a failure because I had broken their hearts (the people I loved the most).

One of the penalties (after jail time) was parole and some therapy. In the aftermath of COVID – and to comply with my insurance restriction – they selected a therapist a few hundred miles from me, and our weekly sessions would be conducted online. After an assessment, he told me in our first week that I was an alcoholic. I promptly disagree. I considered myself a regular drinker (a social drinker as they say). I am not in the same category as those with a deeper “bottom”. I haven't lost everything. I wasn't homeless. I was retired, but employable.

My therapist politely accepted my refusal to be labeled alcoholic and suggested I get the book Alcoholics Anonymous and read portions of Chapter 3 (More About Alcoholism). He asked me to decide (after reading) what kind of alcoholic I was and report to him on our next meeting. On the first reading I promptly recognized myself as a typical alcoholic – of the heavier kind. At the same time, I started to like how the book was written in a non-judgmental manner and decided to find out more about the AA fellowship. I searched online for a meeting and attended one closer to home, on a Monday (our sessions were by-weekly on Thursdays). *

I loved my first AA meeting. I was delighted throughout the whole hour. People from different backgrounds, positions, status and age were put together and enjoying each other's company. They seemed sincere in their respect for each other, and they were respectful of the messages in their shares even if they had opposing points of view. Later I found out that was based on the “Live and Let Live” guideline used in AA.

Someone mentioned that the ONLY requirement for membership is the desire to stop drinking, and I knew that my live wouldn't be as unmanageable in sobriety. One of the shares mentioned sponsorship, so at the end of the meeting I met someone that became my first sponsor. He shared my excitement for the AA program, and we went to meetings almost every day. We started to work on the Steps immediately as he noticed my sense of urgency. I wanted to learn about a possible solution to deal with stressful moments in life without using alcohol as the easy way out.

We carefully – but eagerly – worked the 12 steps, dissected the 12 traditions, and in my 7th month of sobriety he told me I was ready to sponsor somebody. I laughed. I knew I didn't know enough to be a sponsor, and I was sober for a too short of a time. He mentioned that "if Bill Wilson waited to help other alcoholics, we wouldn't have AA today". After all, who can best understand a scared newcomer than another newcomer that worked the steps? I was told that with my enthusiasm with the program, all I needed to share is the fact that it is working for me. As for the knowledge about the program, the Big Book would provide that. I just needed to base all my suggestions on authorized AA materials.

I'm still involved in attending as many meetings as I can, getting service positions, helping newcomers and offering my availability as a sponsor.

I'm so glad that from a chaotic two decades in my life I was guided to a spiritual program that anchored me in sobriety, service and acceptance. I'm happier than I've ever been and still excited about AA as I was on my first meeting. I jokingly say that "my only addiction is AA". And that addiction I don't want to remove from my life.

*****

(*) I later found out that my therapist was A.A. and decided to travel and visit with him (in person, for the first time) and we attended a meeting together. After the circle for the Serenity Prayer, we embraced, and I whispered in his years that I was thankful for him saving my life. It was a nice moment, witnessed by one of my daughters that was there for support.

in loving memory

Doug Roy

It is with great sadness that we announce the passing of our dear friend, Doug Roy on September 01, 2022. A pillar in the A.A. community, many will remember serving along side Doug at Central Office where he volunteered as the Chairperson, Editor for the Lifeline, Literature Chair, along with many other volunteer positions in A.A. over the years. He will be greatly missed by all that knew him.
